

7 Tips for Giving a Killer Speech

Does public speaking make you sweaty-palmed and anxious? These 7 techniques can calm your nerves and help you deliver a more powerful speech.

1. Deliver a performance, rather than a speech.
2. Use the power of eye contact.
3. Don't hide behind the lectern.
4. Posture matters.
5. Tell compelling stories.
6. Vary your cadence.
7. Speak about what you know and care about.

Basic speech construction

Your speech will have three parts:

- an opening or introduction,
- the body where you present your main ideas,
- an ending.

Split your time allowance so that you spend approximately 70% on the body and 15% each on the introduction and ending.

How to write the speech

- Write your main ideas out incorporating your examples and research.
- Link them together making sure each flows in a smooth, logical progression.
- Write your ending, summarizing your main ideas briefly and end with a call for action.
- Write your introduction considering the 'hook' you're going to use to get your audience listening.

An often quoted saying to explain the process is: Tell them what you're going to tell them (Introduction). Tell them (Body of your speech - the main ideas plus examples). Tell them what you told them (The ending).
